Reverse

The diagram shows a rectangular layout for the reverse side of a print. It features three horizontal lines with arrows pointing to the right, each representing a different boundary: a grey line for the bleed area, a magenta line for the cut line, and a blue line for the safety line. The entire layout is enclosed within a dashed magenta border, which is itself inside a larger dashed blue border.

BLEED AREA

For full bleed, artwork must extend 3mm beyond the cutline.
